EXTENDED TIME FOR COMPLETION OF PLANT

Upon the recommendation of Twombly & Henney, engineers, the city has extended the time for the completion of the light and water plant by Benjamin Thompson to Jan. 1, 1917. This is done because of the delays caused in making changes in the location of the new plant.

EXCITEMENT AT OXFORD

It is reported here today that considerable excitement has been aroused in Oxford by the mysterious and sudden death of Mrs. C. E. Rowell of that place. Mrs. Rowell was buried Monday, and yesterday Sheriff Coleman, of Sumter county, had the body exhumed, and the stomach removed and sent to Jacksonville for examination, to learn, if possible, the cause of death.

From what can be learned, Mrs. Rowell complained of having a headache. Mr. Rowell gave her a dose of medicine. She died almost immediately, before a doctor could reach her. The suddenness of her death caused some stir, and Sheriff Coleman decided that it would be best to have the body exhumed, to determine whether or not Mrs. Rowell was poisoned. Mrs. Rowell is mourned by many friends.

INSISTS ON ILLUMINATION

Marshal Carter asked council last night to have the lights proposed for the dark alleys in the center of the city installed as soon as possible. This will be done. The marshal asked for the lights recently, pointing out that they would be a protection to the business houses, and would tend to reduce the number of burglaries.

SEVERAL PUBLIC SPIRITED CITIZENS

Are Willing to Assist the City in Repairing the Silver Springs Street

The condition of the street, or road, between the city and Silver Springs is deplorable. It is full of holes, and people traveling over it are lamentably jolted in any vehicle they may use.

Mr. George Easterling said to a Star reporter this morning that he would be one of a number of citizens to help the city repair the road. This afternoon, he said that Messrs. John Taylor and Ernest McLin had joined in his offer. Each of these gentlemen will contribute two teams with men to manage them for a day. If a few more will join, they can go over the road and fill the holes up in a day's work.

SEATS NEEDED FOR THE COURTHOUSE SQUARE

Marshal Carter, who is a daily witness of the need for seats on the courthouse square, like the baby about Pears' soap, will never be happy till he gets them.

The Star is informed that strong steel benches, four to six feet, will cost $6 to $10, and Mr. Carter says that if the city and county can't raise the coin, he is going to call on the public-spirited citizens to help him do it.

The principal objection to such benches is that they often become roosting places for undesirable, but Mr. Carter says that as long as he is marshal they will be kept for good folks who need them.

ABLE TO OPERATE UNDER EXISTING ORDINANCES

The judiciary committee of council has decided that the Seminole Motor Bus company will be able to operate its jitneys successfully under the existing traffic ordinances, and that an exclusive franchise, as asked for, need not be gone into. This will be satisfactory to the bus company.

FENOLE stands alone as the insecticide that "hits them where they live," and puts them out of business without regard to class, color or size.

FENOLE is to be used anywhere and everywhere in the home; the insect hidden away in the darkest corner or the deepest fold of carpet, bedding, or clothing, has no more chance for his life than his fellow bug who risks it in the open.

LITTLE THINGS THAT COUNT

Comparatively Trivial Trouble in Philadelphia Building Made Structure Temporarily Worthless.

Any high-school girl graduate can write a pretty essay on "The Little Things That Count."

For example, a cinder in the eye is more formidable than Mount Shasta, 3600 miles away. One fly spoils a barrel of ointment, and so on indefinitely.

Had the president of the United States resigned at 11:45 o'clock on a recent day scores of persons would have been less affected than they were when the elevator men in a skyscraper at Broad and Chestnut quit work.

We do have a vice president, but we have no wings to carry us to our eighteenth floor offices. Consternation is a feeble word and far too anemic to describe the feelings of that throng of men and women who swiftly clogged the corridors of that huge building.

Can you imagine a more futile thing than 20 floors of masonry and steel without an elevator? You never can imagine how many people shoot up and down in these iron-grilled cages in ten minutes, until the cages cease to fly like shuttles on a weaver's loom.

Just a few cents' worth of human energy in the arm of a man, or rather the lack of it, puts $8,000,000 worth of building on the scrap heap!—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"Ye" is Pronounced "Thuh."

The "y" in "ye" is simply a substitute for the Anglo-Saxon "thorn" letter, so called, which we have no way of getting into this column. That Anglo-Saxon letter, like the corresponding Icelandic character, stood for "th." The Encyclopedia Britannica says:

"The English letter 'thorn' survived and continued in use down to the fifteenth century, when it was transformed to y."

As for the pronunciation of "ye," meaning "the," it is, of course (as near as we can put it into printer's ink) "thuh" today, as was in Chaucer's time and long before. Nobody who speaks English ever pronounces "the" as if it spelled "thee," but gives it the same sound as the "e" has in the corresponding French word. Just as the French pronoun "le" is "luh" today, so is "the" pronounced "thuh" day. The class is now dismissed.—Manitoba Free Press.

Saliva and the Emotions.

The influence of fear upon the flow of saliva has long been known. The dry mouth of the nervous person called upon to speak in public is an example. In India the effect of fear in stopping the flow of saliva was at one time used in finding the guilty person when several were suspected of committing a crime. All who were suspected had to chew the consecrated rice and after a given time spit it out upon a leaf of the sacred fig tree. If anyone put forth the rice in a dry state, that was taken as proof that fear of being discovered had stopped his saliva from flowing. He was regarded as guilty of the crime.—Walter B. Cannon, M. D., in the Youth's Companion.

PICNIC AT OAK GROVE
